

Ladies and Gentlemen,

Hereby we would like to inform you about a

Scientific Program in the Topic of Corruption, which will be held on the 21st and 22nd of March in 2022 in Budapest (Hungary) and which is organized by the National Institute of Criminology.

We have summarized the most important facts both about the project (CRITCOR) and about the certain event in order to inform all the potential participants with regards to it. The “call” comes as the following:

The professional program entitled: Corruption risk, risk of corruption?

Distinguishing criteria between petty and high-ranking corruption was implemented under the European Union HERCULE III program from 1 January 2021 to 31 March 2022.

In the project led by the National Institute of Criminology, experts from Portugal, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Great Britain, Poland, the Czech Republic and Romania have participated in order to support and promote the successful implementation of the fifteen-month cooperation.

You can find out more about the project on the following page:

<https://critcor.okri.hu/index.php/project/summary>

On the 21st and 22nd of March we are happy to announce the final conference of CRITCOR, organized on the following topic: Distinguishing criteria between petty and high-ranking corruption. The scientific event will take place in Budapest online, so hereby we would like to kindly invite the experts and practitioners interested in the topic of corruption to participate in the online conference.

We would like to share the draft program with you, so that you can make a well-based decision upon the colorful program. The planned program of the conference is available at the following link:

<https://critcor.okri.hu/index.php/events/agendas/78-jm-sample-data/172-final-conference-21-22-march-2022-budapest>

You can register for the program at the email address below:

rendezveny@okri.hu

In case you decided about joining the final conference of CRITCOR and your registration is accepted by the CRITCOR-TEAM, we will of course share the link of the online platform via you could take part in the two-day discussion.

We would be happy to meet you online on the 21st and/or on the 22nd of March. We are convinced that the program will provide the participants with valuable knowledge and with the opportunity to participate in a fruitful discussion.

Kind regards,

Prof. Dr. Tünde Barabás