11-14 September 2024, Romania

CALL FOR ABSTRACTS

Southern Criminology and Crimes of the Powerful

Coordinated by

Valeria Vegh Weis (Universidad de Buenos Aires/Uni Konstanz), valeria.vegh-weis@uni-konstanz.de

Luiz Dal Santo (University of Oxford), luiz.dalsanto@crim.ox.ac.uk

Southern Criminology is a collective movement aiming to reshape the criminological field, from its premises and theoretical frameworks to its research focuses and agenda. One of its features is to shed light on distinct patterns, trends, and effects of how crime is experienced in Southern countries. In this vein, the Global South and its peoples [or peripheral settings and their peoples] have been hugely impacted by the so-called “crimes of the powerful” in all their forms – for example, environmental, white-collar, corporate, and state crimes and harms. A better understanding of these realities is a timely project to which an increasing number of scholars has been committed to.

We are planning to submit a pre-arranged panel on Southern Criminology and Crimes of the Powerful to the 24th Annual Conference of the European Society of Criminology. If you are interested in being part of this panel, please send an abstract between 150-250 words by 1 April 2024 to the above mentioned email addresses. Submissions should include a title, abstract, and the author’s name and affiliation. We welcome presentations of previously developed research as well as work in progress and exploratory questions on methodological issues that can be presented in an informal manner to open up the discussion. We are particularly interested in issues relating to state crime and crimes of the powerful in both ordinary politics and in transitional justice contexts. If possible, contact us as soon as possible to express your interest. Please note this is an in-person conference.
